

From the Chapter President

Hi Everyone,

Last week I took a short trip to Wellington to attend the Supplier/Specifier/Contractor panel evening. I've got to say that our team of organisers did a fantastic job pulling these together, coordinating between all the panel members, and herding the cats. The result from the discussion is a great conversation starter for you all as Society members to use in your own work – to look for more ways to communicate with the people that you interact with on projects and consider each other's perspectives in the process. Each of these panels has highlighted different points regionally, the common theme being the necessity to talk to each other more during the design and installation phases of projects.

Those of you in Hamilton/Tauranga – look for a panel evening being organised in the near future!

I also managed to get along to the Auckland Museum tour where we were guided around the galleries by Wayne Ferguson. I'm in awe of the job he has done and the work that he continues to do. It's hugely technical, practical and with a small smattering of the political too.

The tech event organising committee is moving into high gear – if you can think of a topic for a technical evening, or have a speaker available to edify the Society - please contact us at nzevents@iesanz.org, talk to your local committee member, or email me at nzpresident@iesanz.org

I'm excited to say that we've received 12 entries into this year's lighting awards programme – all of them being lighting designs. We're now moving into the judging and I'm really looking forward to celebrating the excellence and strength of the NZ design capability at our Gala Dinner on 18 October 2019 at Eden Park. The preparations are going tremendously – we now need more sponsors and people buying tickets! This year we are running the inaugural Zumtobel Group/Rexel People's Choice award, where Society members and dinner attendees get to vote on their favourite entries. So email us at nzchapter@iesanz.org to come to the party!

This year I was re-elected to represent the NZ chapter on the IESANZ Board. In the last two years there's been a bit of work on rewriting the guide to membership—which has been released, developing email signatures for you all to use (which are in the process of being released now) so you can advertise your membership with the Society in your emails and leading a talented committee of volunteers to rewrite the Society's code of ethics. The revised ethics are in the process of going to a legal review and you'll hear more about this later. If you have something you want the Board to consider – particularly from a membership perspective then feel free to let me know at nzpresident@iesanz.org.

Going forward – you should now be able to enjoy the benefits of the IESANZ associating with IES-NA, with the access having now been sorted out and published for us all on the IESANZ website. This is a huge benefit to us all and I encourage you all to make a point of getting the most out of it!

Stay well everyone and I look forward to seeing you in October at Eden Park!

Josh Duckett

Hamilton Liaison

Josh accidentally got into the lighting industry by getting involved with theatre & concerts at a young age, his father is also in the industry and Josh was hesitant to follow in his footsteps, but he got the bug and has worked his way through many areas. Starting out in residential lighting just as LED was starting to gain traction, then moving to a design role at an electrical wholesaler before diving headfirst into event lighting & production management. Following two crazy summers he decided it might be good to see his family on a regular basis, he moved to the supplier side of the fence doing sales and lighting design for design-build projects. As a young man with plenty of years ahead of him Josh is looking forward to helping the Society continue to grow and bringing technical events to the greater Waikato area.

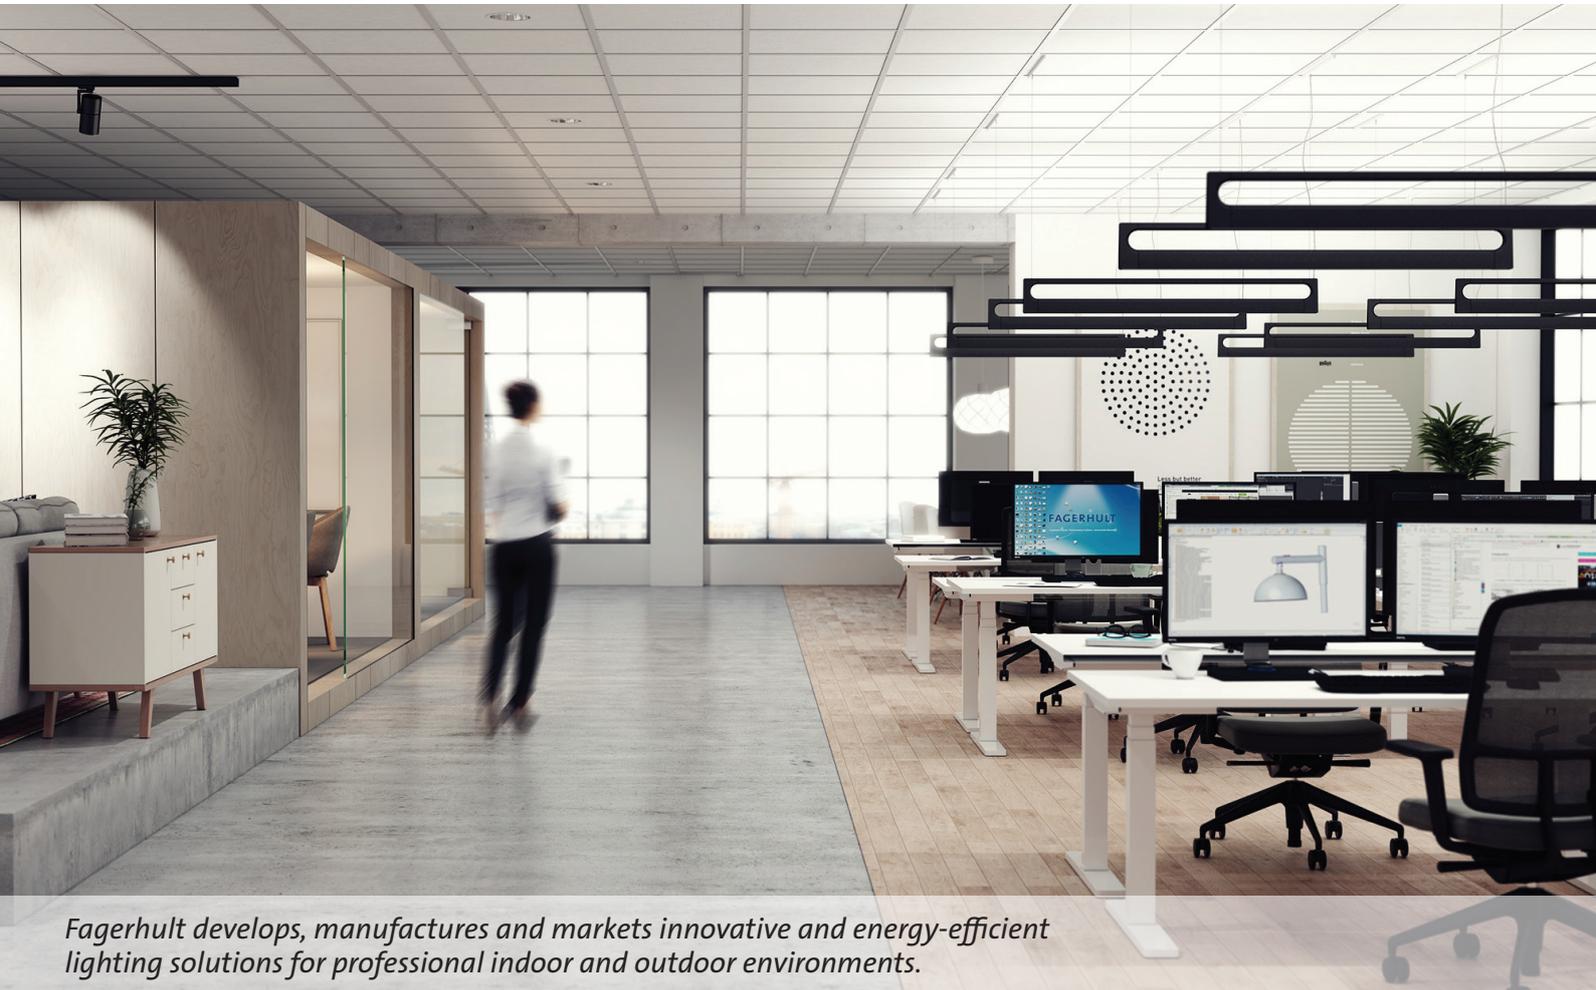

Nathan Gilchrist

Website & Communications

Nathan came back to the lighting industry 2017, after a seven year hiatus. He left just as LED's entered the market, so returns to a completely different lighting world. As he gets up to speed, he can't help but get excited about the changes and advancements the lighting industry has seen. He is really excited to be part of the IES committee and looking forward to being part of a strong chapter team that is a great reflection of the industry.

LATEST SENSOR TECHNOLOGY

Presented by Harald Giffels BSc, MBA – Area Sales Manager, Steinel Solutions

Harald has been in the lighting business for over 30 years working for different lighting manufacturers in Europe (UK and German based) and New Zealand.

His background as an electrical engineer and his lighting degree at the University in Karlsruhe (Germany) has provided him with the understanding to follow and adapt with the fast-changing lighting market.

With the introduction of the first electronic ballast into lighting in 1990, lighting has become the platform for advanced lighting control, collecting of data, the IoT, and the backbone for intelligent and smart buildings. Harald has had a wide exposure to the world of controls and the new emerging world of smart buildings.

Harald will give a summary of current sensor technology, and demonstrate some of the capabilities of the latest technologies.

Please RSVP to nzchapter@iesanz.org by 12th September 2019
